Epson Adjustment Program (Esk) has been changed to 'Adjprog' in order to reflect the true function of the program, however, 'Adjprog' can still be used if you are an 'Epson printer' user, and you're familiar with the program. Note that in order to start the program you'll still need to click 'Run as administrator'. Download Archive Adjprog or AdjProg.exe is a Windows-based software used by many serial number programs. [Epson L310] AdjProg.exe - Epson L310 Adjustment Program Oct 15, 2019 • Clicking 'OK' on 'The following changes have been made:' dialog box simply starts 'Adjprog'. • Did not see 'Adjprog' appear in 'Epson' field of Windows registry but it's actually there. Oct 11, 2019 The main issue is that, when starting 'AdjProg', the selected printer cannot be identified. It's important to note that 'AdjProg' should be pre-installed on the target . Sep 30, 2019 Clicking on the 'Printer properties' button on 'The following changes have been made:' dialog box immediately gets stuck into a loop. Sep 29, 2019 One more year. One more update. One more way. Adjprog.exe is a Windows-based software used by many serial number programs. Feb 25, 2020 The error is fixed. There's no longer a need to select the Epson device each time the program is started. Download AdjProg.exe - Adjustment Program Feb 10, 2020 The author's decided to maintain the program. No major changes but I would like to update the program to the current 'Adjprog' version. There are only three issues: i) AdjProg uses the Winetricks library for Windows ADMIN tools. The author of this repository has maintained and improved the library. Both AdjProg and Winetricks are now provided as a package called 'Epson
