The present invention relates to a crystalline ceramic material, a process for the preparation of this material, its use, and a catalyst comprising this material which is useful for the preparation of polyolefins by polymerization of olefins. Several processes for the preparation of polyolefins by polymerization of olefins are known in the art. These processes are generally considered as two-phase or single-phase polymerization processes. In the single-phase polymerization process, the whole amount of polymer is crystallized simultaneously and the catalyst is generally a catalyst capable of being immobilized. The object of the present invention is to provide a new catalyst composition having particular characteristics of a catalyst having a high activity, polymerization and swelling ability, and high stability. According to the present invention, this object is achieved with a crystalline ceramic material of the formula $\mu X_2 - Y_2 O_3$, wherein: X=at least one element selected from the group consisting of the elements of sub-group 2A, and PA1 Y=at least one element selected from the group consisting of the elements of sub-group 3B, of the elements of sub-group 3A, and of the elements of sub-group 3B of the elements of sub-group 3, PA1 the atomic ratio of X and Y ranges from 1 to 50, PA1 the oxygen content of the ceramic ranges from 24 to 48%, PA1 the x-ray diffraction pattern of the ceramic is formed from at least two peaks each having a maximum value at Bragg angle 2θ of at least 10.degree., PA1 the x-ray diffraction pattern of the ceramic is formed from at least three peaks each having a maximum value at Bragg angle 2θ of at least 15.degree., PA1 the ceramic is derived from a rock. PA1 a sintered block obtained by pressing at a pressure of at least 1000 kg/cm² a mass containing α -alumina, said mass containing α -alumina being prepared in the presence of a zirconia and/or hafnia carrier, PA1 and a mother-joint between at least two said blocks.
