Q: What's the best way of doing a small 2d game in Java? I'm a beginner in Java and I have a problem: I have to create a small 2D Java Game with all the graphics and user input on my own. It's a "monster patrolling field" type of game. I've decided to do this by using Tint api and actionscript, since that's the language I'm most familiar with. I'm using Netbeans to create the project with the AS3 plugin. The problem is that Netbeans keeps telling me that I don't have any graphics, that I've lost a Graphics object, or that I don't have any children of a graphics object (I've got everything in a Canvas, but still Netbeans complains). Because I need this project to be finished ASAP, I would like to ask what's the best way of doing this in Java, so I won't have these problems? All the tutorials I found on the internet are very advanced, I don't want to write a 2D game in a month, so these are too advanced for me. Also, I know this is very broad, but I'm looking for some tips, not some code. A: You can use the Tint api without problems in Java, and it's easy and fast to code in Java. The problems you had when you used the AS3 plugin are because the AS3 engine is not the same like Java. You cannot make a Swing application, for example, in AS3. // Rotated & Flipped Icons // -------------------------- .#{$fa-css-prefix}-rotate-90 { @include fa-icon-rotate(90deg, 1); } .#{$fa-css-prefix}-rotate-180 { @include fa-icon-rotate(180deg, 2); } .#{$fa-css-prefix}-rotate-270 { @include fa-icon-rotate(270deg, 3); } .#{$fa-css-prefix}-flip-horizontal { @include fa-icon-flip(-1, 1, 0); } .#{$fa-css-prefix}-flip-vertical { @include fa-icon-flip(1, -1, 2); } // Hook for IE8- bff6bb2d33
