It is written in a more informal style than standard English, and is preferred among native speakers of English in Singapore and in the United States. It has been criticised as being confusing and misleading, but is nonetheless widely used, particularly by new arrivals, in everyday communication. The term is partly a reference to the large numbers of English immigrants who arrived in the city after the Second World War and during the 1960s. Description Flawed English is more colloquial, and is often written more tersely. It is often written in a conversational style: not through conscious copying of American English, but simply through lack of training in standard English and a demand for speed in the form of busy lifestyles. After the Second World War, a large number of British and Irish immigrants came to Singapore, and this brought about a swift incorporation of English into the local linguistic landscape. Unlike Standard English, which is based on the language of King James I, Language Learners House (a language school in Singapore) has stated that Flawed English follows

What's New in the?

Are you tired of having to remember to do something you've done at least once a day? Are you getting annoyed with having to remember

information like birthdays and anniversaries? Then this is the app for you! The app comes loaded with a range of awesome events and reminders. So why not make use of them by reminding yourself of something important before it comes up with that extra information? You can add any kind of event to any date that you want. This means that if you want to remind yourself that today is your wife's birthday, you can do it. Or if you want to remind yourself that it is your birthday next week, you can do that too.

You can do it all, whenever you want, for as long as you want. When you've added the event to your reminders list, the App then takes it from there, by doing all of the hard work for you. It will make sure that your reminders will be sent off to your mobile device on the day you specified. And it will check them off as they are done, so there is no chance of forgetting anything. There are no limitations on the types of reminders that you can add to your lists. You can give yourself reminders for things as simple as regular appointments, to as complex as trips to the shops. You can also remind yourself of important events like birthday parties, anniversaries, Christmas, New Year, and much more. Reminder Xpert has plenty more surprises up its sleeve. You can choose whether you want to sound a big bell, or make some kind of noise. You can choose how often you want your reminders to go off. You can choose to have your reminders start at any time you want. And you can choose to start each reminder off with different text. You can even choose how long each reminder should last for, even in half-hourly intervals. So do you want to start adding important reminders right now? How about now? Are you ready to start taking yourself to the next level? Reminder Xpert Ordering Information: Reminder Xpert is available to download and start using right now.
