I want to print the PDF but the program shuts down and i have to kill it from the console. How to solve this problem? I am having issues creating a web page that will run as a PDF and print as a PDF. I am using JQuery to print as a PDF and it needs to print in landscape. But the problem is that the page is very long, so in order to have it fit the page it cuts off a lot of the page and makes it unusable. I need to find a fix for that. Any ideas? Thanks A: When I had a similar problem (albeit with a different printer!), it turned out that the problem was that the PDF was out of date. If you're using an Acrobat reader (I use the Acrobat Reader SDK), you can ask it to refresh the PDF file by setting the "Refresh" button to "Always" on the status bar. This is obviously an imperfect way to get around the problem, but it should avoid some of your problems.

I have a Raspberry Pi, I'm developing an android app, and I need to use the same network connection as the Raspberry Pi. I used to be able to just use pi-hole and it was a great way to hide my wifi from the internet and still use it. But I'm not sure how to do it without using pi-hole anymore. How can I connect to the same network connection as the Raspberry Pi? Do I need to use the same OpenVPN config as it uses? The fact that pi-hole does the routing is what I'm worried about. A: Pihole should not be used as a VPN router. Use a Linux VPN router like pfSense instead. If your Raspberry Pi is connected to the internet using LAN port then it is not protected by a VPN router and is only protected by its Wifi. You could use a VM or a headless Linux computer as a VPN router for your Raspberry Pi. The IP address for the router should always be the IP address of the main computer (e.g. a Raspberry Pi) and not the IP address of the VPN router. If your Raspberry Pi is not connected to the internet then you are not protected by Wifi. Use the computer's ethernet port to connect to the internet. Finding the keys to happiness is the challenge I have been craving to take on since my 20s, and the ideas that keep me motivated are slowly morphing into a self-help title, that I am confident will help people find happiness and success in their lives: "Don't do the hard stuff; just do the easy stuff... and make it a habit." How to find happiness in a troubled world I can find good news, uplifting things everywhere. There is great vision and action in the world; and, our community here is full of inspiring individuals. We often focus on the dark and low-points. The flashes of light in dark places, our yearnings. I recently wrote about my quest for happiness in a troubled world, and now I am hungry for more. Many of the articles I see are about depression, poverty, or the various struggles of surviving in this world. I wonder: if life was better?
