Eligibility for and utilization of antenatal care in Italy. The aim of this study was to investigate, by means of data collected by the National Institute for Statistics and to develop a model for use in the calculation of the percentage of pregnant women who would have received antenatal care in Italy. Data were collected from the survey on consumption expenditures, carried out by the National Institute of Statistics (ISTAT), within the framework of the consolidated budget (Ricerca di Custodia). A total of 3,611,462 women giving birth were examined. The survey on consumption

The answers to this question were used to estimate the total numbers of women receiving antenatal care in Italy, and the percentage of women who had received at least one visit to the antenatal care unit. The survey showed that, in 2007, on average, 39.6% of pregnant women in Italy had at least one visit to the antenatal care unit. The results of this study are essential for policy makers to be able to plan the implementation of services aimed at increasing antenatal care coverage.
