True-Virtual-Reality (3D X-Ray in full) True-Virtual-Reality (3D X-Ray in full) is a tool for the diagnosis of bone structure by using virtual X-ray projection. The patient is not exposed to X-ray radiation, since he can be diagnosed in 3D. This procedure, also known as "virtual X-ray", is not the same as conventional 2D X-ray photography. The patient is not exposed to X-ray radiation, since he can be diagnosed in 3D. The principle of this type of projection is the same as that of a so-called 3D-Luminar image, but the interpretation (3D visualization) differs significantly. True-Virtual-Reality is used in a large number of fields, including medicine, education, security and detection of defects. The cameras used for this method were developed in cooperation with Siebel Vision, a company known for its medical imaging system: Share this video: Share this video Access a lot of free high quality pornographic clips and movies!
